

Legislative Update

Week of June 6, 2022

Roy Cooper, Governor

Eddie M. Buffaloe, Jr., Secretary

The NC General Assembly held another full week of committee meetings where they voted on several policy bills. The Senate has been moving at a quick pace the past few weeks with many of their bills now awaiting action by the House.

Budget negotiations between the House and Senate continue behind closed doors. This process is moving at a faster clip this short session. Budget chairs have indicated this year’s budget will be released as one conference report meaning that there will not be an opportunity to revise the budget, or its provisions, once released. Typically, each chamber releases their own proposals followed by committee hearings and public discussions. At this point, it appears that a revised budget is on track to be released sometime in the coming weeks.

The House and Senate will be back for voting sessions Tuesday of next week. It will be a significant day as the House will conduct its business in the historic old State Capitol building.
